Madeline Sheehan's tale of life, love, loss, and regret is a powerfully bittersweet masterpiece. Her riveting storytelling skill weaves seamlessly between Preacher's memories of the past, and Eva's heartbreak learning the truth about her parent's relationship as she copes with losing her beloved father in the present.

Unbeautifully was told in 4 points of view, Ripper, Danny, Eva, & Deuce. Madeline Sheehan is one crazy woman to try it, but she succeeded. The different POVs added to the story, created a better understanding, and allowed me to feel each and every character; to build an understanding with them, hurt with them, feel with them.
