days on his fingers- "all the time water, bad water. Then you come to great village, plenty people, just the same mosquitoes next summer. Wigwams oh, so high- ten, twenty pines. Hi-yu skookum!"™ He paused impotently, cast an appealing glance at Malemute Kid, then laboriously placed the twenty pines, end on end, by sign language.

pleasures, but which his predecessors and contemporaries had not recognized or regarded as such. To be sure, it may then seem strange that no mention of katastematic pleasure, by that name, occurs in the Letter to Menoecus, Sovereign Maxims, or Vatican Sayings. But this absence may be explained on the grounds that these were popular
